

Italian-Chinese Dialogues: A Series of Doctoral Seminars in the Humanities

As part of the framework agreement between the University of Naples Federico II and Sun Yat-sen University in Guangzhou, we are proud to present the Italian-Chinese Dialogues. This innovative series of seminars is designed to encourage intellectual exchanges and collaborative research among doctoral students from Italy and China in the field of the humanities. These monthly seminars aim to bridge cultural and academic gaps, offering fresh perspectives on a diverse range of historical and cultural topics.

Upcoming Seminars:

- April 16th, 12:45-14:45 CET:

Donato Sitaro (Ph.D. in Roman and Medieval History), "Teutonic brothers and aggressive aborigines": 19th century attitudes towards the end of Roman Britain.

Yang Chen (Ph.D. in History of the UK), From Macaulay to Freeman: The Change of Whig Narrative in the Late 19th Century.

- May 21st, 12:45-14:45 CET:

Weixia Wang (Ph.D. in Roman History), Vibius Flavianus, the first governor of the Province of Byzacena, through a newly discovered legal document.

Gian Marco Chiari (Ph.D. in Roman History), Are the Christians enemies of the gods? Reality and Fiction of the tetrarchic persecution.

- June 11th, 12:45-14:45 CET:

Guangyu Zhang (Ph.D. student in History of Renaissance), Remarks on Chinese Views on Renaissance Italy in the 20th and 21st centuries.

Costanza Broli (Ph.D. in Arts History), Venetian colour and Florentine drawing: The eternal dichotomy of Renaissance art and artistic historiography through the pages of the Dialogo di pittura di Messer Paolo Pino.

These seminars are not only a platform for academic discussion but also an opportunity to foster understanding and cooperation between two of the world's oldest civilizations. We invite scholars, students, and anyone with a deep interest in the humanities to join us in these enriching dialogues.

The seminars will be conducted online. For more information and to register, please contact Prof. Roberto Delle Donne at delledon@unina.it or Prof. Peter Rothenhoefer at p.rothenhoefer@yahoo.com.

We eagerly anticipate your participation in what promises to be an enlightening series of exchanges.
